INDIAN LOVE CALL

STORY

IT happened in the hinterland of Canada where many furriers, hunters, Indians and rough men who rushed there to discover gold mines had gathered. Wanda, a passionate but simple-minded Indian girl and a dancer at the Jane's Inn, has been in love with Hawley, a wealthy American pelt-dealer, despite the opposition of Black Eagle, her foster-father, who insists that the taboo of their tribe be respected.

But Hawley intends to marry Rosemary, the younger sister of Emile who regards him as one of the successful men of the district. However, Rosemary has been in love with Jim, former notorious rouge. Until he met her, money, dice, wine and girls—all these were his whole of life. But, according to him, "her beauty and tenderness taught me how to live a human life."

One day before Emile, after consultation with Hawley, is to leave the place with Rosemary in order to separate her from Jim, Black Eagle and Helman, Jim's friend, happen to begin a quarrel about the ownership of gold mines. Then, Jim promises the Indian, who persistently insists on his illegal ownership of land owned by Jim and Helman, to let him see the map which will clarify the owners of the land.

Also he promises Rosemary, who is leaving the place, to follow her to Courtnespa, her destination, to spend some days there before going to Brazil. In rapture, she tells him about a small old hut in the mountains which she had christened Rose Castle and asks him to wait for her there if their rendezvous is obstructed by Emile.

The night darkens. Helman goes out after Jim, who has left to call on Black Eagle, but loses his way in the heart of the mountain. Fortunately however, he meets Jane, the hostess of the Jane's Inn who is devotedly in love with him, and also police officers.

Hawley visits Wanda at the Black Eagle's hut to hand over to her a solatium for severing relations with her. She refuses to receive the money but requests his love. At this time, Jim with the map visits the hut. In surprise, Hawley hides himself while Wanda tells Jim that Black Eagle is out. Jim leaves the place after asking her to hand over the map to her foster-father. Later, Black Eagle returns and finds Hawley there. A fight ensues between the Indian and the furrier who have been at loggerheads and during the fight Wanda fatally stabs her father in order to rescue Hawley.

Days later, Jim receives a telegram from the company in Brazil, urging him to come immediately. Helman and Jane are already prepared to leave for South America. Then, Rosemary, at last deciding to go with Jim for Brazil, asks him to wait for her at the Rose Castle while she prepares for departure. At this time, Police Inspector Malone, together with Wanda, comes on the scene to arrest Jim who is being sought by the police on a charge of murdering Black Eagle.

Emile threatens his sister, saying that if she does not consent to marry Hawley, he will tell the whereabouts of Jim to the police inspector. In order to rescue Jim, Rosemary makes up her mind to marry Hawley. But her decision astonishes Wanda, the Indian girl. Now realizing that Hawley has not loved her, she is plunged into despondency. . . .

Jane and Helman have been running a bar, "Ballon Rouge," in Quebec. Suddenly Jim calls on the couple. His account is:

While in Brazil, he was told by a certain man from Canada that he has been wanted by the police due to Wanda's testimony that she witnessed Jim killing her foster-father. Also he knew about Emile's threats to Rosemary, her decision, etc. He searched for Wanda all over Canada and found her. At first she kept mum about the murder case but at last consented to tell the truth to Malone. He brought her to Quebec, and, simultaneously, asked Malone to come to the city.

Rosemary, however, is suspicious about Jim's actions on the night when Black Eagle was killed. Emile and Hawley intentionally try to make her believe that Jim has had connections with Wanda. Moreover, Wanda reveals how kind Jim is to her and declares that she loves him. (Why she says such a thing no one knows). In despondency, Jim leaves the city.

The day of Rosemary's wedding with Hawley has come. Wanda meets Hawley and, revealing her constant affection toward him, requests his love. But he turns a cold shoulder toward her. The marriage ceremony begins. The Indian girl suddenly interrupts the ceremony, declaring that she killed Black Eagle in order to rescue her lover, Hawley, and that Hawley made love to her, promised her to marry and then abandoned her.

At this Rosemary runs out of the place while Wanda is arrested by Malone.

Days have elapsed but Jim's whereabouts is still unknown. Rosemary returns to Courtnespa and visits the vicinity of the Rose Castle. She wistfully sings the Song of the Echo and hears Jim's voice echoing through the mountain. Guided by his echoing song, she at last reaches the Rose Castle where she unexpectedly finds Jim, her lover.

KUEI FEI TSUI CHIU

Chiyo Mutsumi as Lady-in-waiting

SYNOPSIS

About 1,200 years ago, China was governed by Emperor Hsuan Tsung of the Tang Dynasty.

☆ ☆ ☆

PREPARATION for a banquet with Emperor Hsuan Tsung is completed. Accompanied by her ladies-in-waiting, Yang Kuei Fei, Emperor's favorite mistress who is famous for her great beauty, arrives on the scene. However, the Emperor has not yet arrived.

She suspects if the Emperor, forgetting the promise to her to hold a banquet, has visited Mei Fei, a rival beauty. But her anger being soothed by her subordinates who assure her that the Emperor will never visit the rival mistress, Yang Kuei Fei makes up her mind to wait for him.

Later, Kao Lishih and Pei Lishih come on the scene to convey to her the Emperor's words that he will be late for the feast due to indispensable government affairs and that he wishes Yang will begin the banquet immediately.

The banquet begins.

The more Yang becomes drunk, the more irritable she becomes because the Emperor does not come. Again suspecting if the Emperor has been at Mei Fei's, she decides to go to Chang Sheng Palace to meet him.

Just at this moment, the Emperor arrives. Her heart beats with delight but feigning anger she does not greet the Emperor despite the plea of her subordinates; or she even orders her ladies-in-waiting to refuse the entry of the Emperor into her room.
